Referee forced to flee soccer violence

CONRAD ANGULA

YESTERDAY'S Novel Ford Premier League encounter at the Katutura Stadium ended with referee Isboseth Kandjii having to flee the field flanked by policemen after Tigers players and supporters attacked him.

The match, featuring Black Africa and Mukorob Tigers, brought joy to Black Africa players, officials and fans but it will be a day that referee will want to forget.

The trouble started after a hat-trick by super substitute Smithley Engelbrecht, who steered Black Africa to a 3-0 victory.

Kandjii had to be escorted away in a police van after being attacked by Tigers supporters and players after the final whistle.

The mob protested that the referee had handled the match unfairly and also accused the whistler of being drunk.

Sparking the trouble was Tigers player-coach Dan-Boy Ndjadila, who spoiled an afternoon in which he otherwise displayed excellent form in Tigers' midfield.

Ndjadila lost his cool and punched the referee, causing all hell to break loose as the Ingweinyama supporters invaded the field and cornered the referee.

Fists and boots flew leaving the poor referee running and ducking to avoid further harm.

The police, who seemed to have been expecting the trouble, moved in swiftly and Kandjii was escorted to safety but not before he had received a blow with a stick from another angry supporter.

It was also bad timing for Tigers who only a few months ago made the headlines by becoming the first local club to launch a Code of Conduct for their Supporters Club. This initiative was taken after

Court turns down appeal against stiff sentences

TYAPPA NAMUTEWA

A BID by the six members of the farm terror gang to appeal against their convictions and sentences was rejected by the Windhoek High Court on Friday.

The gang, which waged a reign of terror in farming areas north of Windhoek, received what have been described as the most severe sentences to be handed down in post-independence Namibia.

Collectively the six have been sent to jail for a total of 168 years, with the effective sentences ranging from 10 years to 52 years.

Paulus Ndikwetepo, Matheus Tjapa, Mwooma Nghihamhote, Michael Angula, Venasisus Ameho and Martin Kadzhika were found guilty of a string of charges including robbery with aggravating circumstances, theft, attempted murder, possession of arms and ammunition and escaping from custody.

Passing sentence on Friday, Judge Louis Muller said the actions of the six accused had not only created an atmosphere of fear but had also had a negative effect on tourism and investors.

He noted that the six had not been worried about whether their victims were elderly people or women, and in some cases the victims had been brutally attacked.

Further, the attack on farmers had been carefully organised and all the accused had acted with common purpose. In addition, Judge Muller said, the mo-

Joint administration not the issue

WALVIS BAY: Namibian Foreign Affairs Minister, Theo Ben Gurirab, on Saturday called on Walvis Bay residents to accept change and join hands for a better future.

"Please welcome with open hands these developments," he said of the joint administrative authority between South Africa and Namibia.

South African Foreign Minister Pik Botha and Gurirab announced in Windhoek on August 21 that Pretoria and Namibia would establish the JAA to control the disputed port enclave.

Gurirab told the gathering at the Kuisembond community hall that Namibia regarded negotiations on the reintegration of Walvis Bay and 12 offshore island "slow but on course".

He called on Walvis Bay residents to welcome and accept change.

"Change will come. Why fight the inevitable?", he asked.

Namibia saw the introduction of the JAA as "an interim arrangement".

"The issue is not the joint administration ... the solution is not setting up joint administration ... the solution is the settlement of the question of sovereignty."

Namibia and SA could not have normal relations while the dispute existed. Besides affecting the two countries, it also affected relations with other states in the region and beyond.

"Think about how best and how soon we can settle the dispute," Gurirab urged, adding he did not expect the JAA would last six months but it could not carry on indefinitely.

The JAA, he said, would affect "all facets of life" in

Bid to break CDM deadlock

TALKS resume today between CDM (Pty) Ltd and the Mineworkers' Union of Namibia (MUN) in an attempt to resolve the deadlock in the wage dispute at the diamond mine.

The first round of talks at a Conciliation Board hearing at Oranjemund, chaired by attorney Andrew Corbett, on August 24 and 25 failed to reach an agreement. It is believed that while CDM is offering a nine per cent increase the MUN is still holding out for a 26 per cent pay hike.

Down Mexico way ...

A SIX-WEEK taste of Mexico will be on offer at the State Museum's Alte Feste from tomorrow.

The exhibition, which has already been shown in several other countries, is timed to coincide with Mexico's national day on September 16. It covers all aspects of Mexico: historic, modern, geographic, climatic and industrial. The main part of the display is an historical overview, dealing with pre-Hispanic times, the colonial period, independence, the reform movement, war with the United States, the dictatorship and the Mexican revolution. It uses photographs, a collection of 200 ritual masks, engravings and many other materials. As Africa also contributes to the formation of the Mexican culture, the display should also be intriguing to people interested in the interplay of Afro-Latin-American cultures.

For Namibia, there are interesting comparisons to be made in the post-independence reform section and the industrialisation of a similar natural environment.

The display can be viewed during museum opening times: Monday to Friday 09h00 to 18h00 and on Saturday and Sunday from 10h00 to 12h30 and 15h00 to 18h00. The exhibition closes on Sunday 11 October.

sentenced to an effective 52 years' imprisonment.

Ndikwetepo was convicted of robbing Heiner Schneider-Waterberg's farm at Otjiwarongo on February 1991, of the robbery at Stephanus de Lange's farm Khairob near Outjo. He was also convicted of theft and escaping from custody.

* Tjapa was sentenced to 49 years' imprisonment after he was convicted of robbery of the Onduruguea farm near Omaruru, robbing the Schneider-Waterberg farm and robbing Gunnar Voigts' Otjozonjati farm, east of Okahandja.

* Angula was also convicted of robbing the Voigts farm and was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment, while Nghihamhote, who was convicted for the same crime, was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment.

* Ameho was sentenced to 28 years and six months for robbing the Kriel family at Otjiwarongo and the De Lange family. The six months was for stealing two sheep belonging to De Lange.

* Kadikwa, who was only convicted of robbing the De Lange family and the theft of two sheep, was sentenced to 17 years' imprisonment.

The farm terror trial, which started in April this year, was the longest in Namibian history with 40 days alone spent on hearing evidence.

Judge Muller was assisted by two assessors, Johannes Karuaihe and Eunid Karamen.

African NGO networks link up with Namibia

NGO REPRESENTATIVES from 17 east and southern African countries met in Windhoek earlier this month to help Namibia's co-ordinating body Nangof find the best way forward with development.

Members of the Namibia Non Governmental Organisations Forum (Nangof) were joined by the worldwide organisation for Development Innovations and Networks (IRED), whose members offered up to 30 years experience of development work.

Nangof member Lindy Kazombaue described the meeting as "very useful" and an opportunity to learn from other countries' successes and failures.

At present Nangof has observer status at IRED but hopes to become a full member shortly. "There is a lot we can learn from other African countries," said Kazombaue, adding that for her Uganda had provided particularly interesting food for thought. "At the moment we tend to share experiences mainly with South African groups but development in that country and in Namibia tends to be very focused on political sensitivities."

It was refreshing and illuminating to find out about development priorities in countries further afield, she said. The main points of discussion at the Nangof/IRED meeting were experiences of collaborative development, access to credit facilities, the development of human resources, networking and alternative funding for NGOs.

"We also talked about the relationship between governments and NGOs in other countries and the advocacy role of NGOs," said Kazombaue.

Wrapping up, the Judge warned that the courts would impose stiff sentences to frighten off other criminals.

The sentences received by the six are:

Namibia's university born today

TOM MINNEY

THE new University of Namibia is born today and the Academy abolished.

According to a notice put out by Education and Culture Minister Nahas Angula in the Government Gazette recently, the University of Namibia Act comes into effect on August 31.

In terms of the act, from today the Academy is abolished and dissolved as a formal institution. The Academy's council and senate also stop existing.

The new university is to be run by a senate and a council. But during the setting up stage, it will have a nine-member founding council which will take on all powers. This is to be made up of the Vice-Chancellor Dr Peter Katjavivi (who loses the word "designate" in his title from today), Vitalis Ankama and Godfrey Gaoseb (the permanent secretaries of Education and Culture and of Finance respectively) and six others all or some of whom are to be nominated by President Sam Nujoma.

The other bodies of the new University are to be set up shortly in line with procedures laid down in the act. The first intake of students will start in January next year, while existing Academy courses and students are to be transferred to the new body with a minimum of disruption.

Many courses will continue in the same Academy premises while suitable buildings are being put up on the University campus at the former Windhoek teacher training college.

'No problems' say Angula and USAID

EDUCATION Minister Nahas Angula has hit back at recent reports which blamed inefficiency and slow progress for a USAID decision to hold back second stage funding for basic education reform in Namibia.

In a statement yesterday, Angula said the Ministry was "quite satisfied" with its efforts on reform and forward planning, adding that long-term results would not be apparent before the turn of the century.

Helen Picard of USAID also denied the reports. She said only two of some 46 conditions had not been met when the second stage payment of R6 million was to have been made in March. "They have since been met and the money will be handed over in January. The third instalment of R5 million is on course for next March."

Picard added that by then some R21 million would have been handed over - about two-thirds of the overall amount and well ahead of schedule for the six-year programme.

"In such a long programme there is bound to be some slippage, but there was never any bad faith intended by the US Government," she said.

Defending his Ministry's record on basic reform, Angula said the planning document 'A Development Brief for Education, Culture and Training' was in its final stages and would be followed by detailed programmed planning for sub-sectoral, regional, district and community needs with regard to education.

Angula also said the draft of the Education Act, to be introduced during the next sitting of Parliament, was virtually ready. Measures to establish a national polytechnic for Namibia were also under legal consideration.

Teacher training and in-service programmes were well underway, as were the new junior secondary curriculum, out-of-school and adult training schemes and literacy campaigns.

In order to achieve equity in and access to basic education, "the Ministry must operate simultaneously on many fronts" with various forms of assistance, said Angula.

"The Ministry is satisfied with the level of assistance from these co-operating partners and with the commitment of the Government of Namibia," he said, adding that education had been allocated "a full 20 per cent of the national budget".

Educational reform was inevitably slow, especially in a country where participatory and democratic reform was the aim, he went on. "At the earliest, one can begin to hope for substantial and enduring change after 10 years or so."

In addition to its major funding on Basic Education in Namibia, USAID hopes to sign a bilateral agreement on natural resources within the coming week.

Killed with baseball bat

ROLAND ROUTH

A 22-year-old man, Griffith Jarmann, on Friday appeared in the Windhoek High Court on a charge of killing Mwabu Muhata with a baseball bat at the farm Witkop in the Rehoboth district on March 26 1991.

Judge Pio Teek is on the bench and Geoffrey Dicks is prosecuting.

Portuguese-Namibian business body starts

A Portuguese-Namibian chamber of commerce and industry has been set up with 60 full members and some Portuguese former secretaries of state among its chief executives, according to press release. The chamber says it will send a trade mission to Namibia in October which will give interested Portuguese businesspeople valuable local contacts as well as a chance to meet Government officials, business counterparts and local bodies.

The new chamber, based in Lisbon, Portugal, says it aims to have 100 full members by the end of this year and to have 200 by the end of next year.

President of the chamber's general assembly is Horácio da Silva Roque, from a company called Rentipar-Sociedade Gestora de Participações Sociais and described in the release as "a well-known Portuguese entrepreneur and banker".

The board of directors is headed by Dr António Neto da Silva, a former secretary of state for foreign trade and from a company Financetar-Sociedade de Serviços Financeiros, Empresariais e Imobiliários. Namibia-based directors include Hans-Jürgen Steuber, managing director of The Commercial Bank of Namibia, and Carlos dos Santos of Metro Cash & Carry. Vice-president of the board of directors is Enrique Santos, representative of the Banco Espanhol de Crédito in Portugal and treasurer is Fernando Leyva from Banco Nacional Ultramarino.

The new body also has an audit council, headed by José Antonio Leite de Araújo who is a former secretary for state of internal trade and works with Portline. The other committee covers conciliation and arbitration and is headed by Dr Victor Manuel Pereira Dias of Tradingpor-Empresa de Comércio Externo de Portugal. Secretary General of the new two-country chamber is António Nóbrega Lume.

ing that there were many other acceptable ways to lodge complaints with the League.

"It is hard for me to swallow what happened yesterday."

Dan-Boy (Ndjadila) as a Tigers official should have known better than to indulge in such a bad act," Namugongo said.

"Hence it would really be unfair to put the blame squarely on the shoulders of the Tigers' executive.

It's a bad situation and I hope that we will find a solution that will clean up our club after tonight's executive meeting," he added.

Namugongo also said it was a bad that the incident had taken place at a time when the team was trying to clean up its act.

"Dan-Boy, as a coach, should not look away from reality. Both teams had their chances and BA capitalised on theirs. He should go back and rectify the wrongs that lost us the match and simply not look for a scapegoat to blame for the defeat. It is a fact - Tigers did not perform well," he concluded.

Safe and sound with new security group

A BIG thank you goes out from the staff of The Namibian to the Namibia Community Security Co-op which provided an excellent and affordable service at the newspaper's birthday celebrations on Friday night.

The co-op responded quickly and efficiently to our request for help, providing bar staff and security men who guarded the gates and grounds of the NUNW building in Katutura from the early evening till well into the small hours.

Despite being a newly-formed organisation, the co-op was more than up to the job, professional and confidence-inspiring. It is a project initiated by ex-combatants who fought on opposing sides of the liberation war. Among the 30 members are also school leavers, both men and women. Eight members recently underwent a three-month training course in Zimbabwe and the co-op sees regular in-service training, as well as appropriate experience, as the key to successful operations.

The co-op offers day and night security for shops, factories, houses, schools, NGOs, embassies and government property. It also offers security surveys and advice, plain clothes security, and patrols of homes and offices. In the future, it hopes to offer a guard dog service, alarm installations and high storage facilities. The co-op can be contacted at (061) 62402 and is highly recommended!

12 years for taxi killing

ROLAND ROUTH

WERNEUMAN Amwele, 38, was on Friday sentenced to an effective 12 years in prison after he was found guilty of murdering a member of the NDF, Michael Iyambo.

Judge Neal Hannah handed down a sentence of 15 years' imprisonment of which three years was suspended for five years.

Amwele shot Iyambo at Ondangwa on December 30 1991.

Amwele pleaded not guilty and said he acted in self defence.

The shooting took place after a quarrel erupted after Amwele refused to transport Iyambo and a friend in his taxi when they asked him to.

Amwele said he wanted the two to wait until he had finished talking to his father who was in the taxi with him.

Iyambo died of a shot wound to the heart.

Arguing in mitigation for Amwele, defence counsel Herman Oosthuizen told the court that Amwele was a married man with small children.

John Walters for the State asked the court to take the interest of society into account when passing sentence.

Walters said people could not be allowed to take the law into their own hands.

Bridge judgement today

ROLAND ROUTH

JUDGEMENT is expected today in the case in which Jakobus Willem Hendriks, 25, is accused of killing Saul Zagaria by stabbing him in the chest with a knife.

According to the charge-sheet Hendriks, Zagaria and a group of other people were drinking under the bridge near the Wermhil Park shopping centre on October 31 last year when an argument erupted between Hendriks and Zagaria.

Hendriks allegedly drew a knife and stabbed Zagaria several times. One of the blows struck Zagaria's chest and penetrated his heart. He died on the spot.

Hendriks pleaded not guilty and said he had acted in self defence.

The case is being heard before Judge Bryan O'Linn with Annemarie Lategan acting for the State and George Coleman appearing for the accused.

Church leaders rounded up in new Malawi crackdown

LUSAKA: In a new crackdown on dissent, Malawi police detained 11 church leaders and outlawed a pro-democracy rally yesterday, a church leader said.

Ten of the clergymen were released last night, and it was not known if they would face charges, said the Rev. Aaron Longwe, moderator-elect of the Church of Central African Presbyterians. The fate of the 11th prisoner was not known.

"These detentions are a very sad development," Longwe told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

Longwe was one of the organizers of the rally planned for the northern city of Mzuzu. Church leaders said it was intended to publicize their calls for a national referendum on ending one-party rule.

But police swooped down on the organizers late on Saturday and detained nine, including a Roman Catholic priest, Father John Leaghy from Ireland, Longwe said. Two more were arrested yesterday, including one priest who urged his congregation to defy the government and attend the rally, Longwe said. All except that priest had been freed by last night, according to Longwe and a lawyer, Harry Chiume, who spoke to the AP by phone.

State radio said Saturday night the rally had been banned because of security regulations. Religious leaders and human rights groups, including Amnesty International, have accused President Kamuzu Banda of allowing human rights violations in his tiny, impoverished nation of 9 million.

They have detailed allegations that political opponents have been assassinated, detained without trial and hounded into exile.

Banda, who led Malawi to independence in 1964, has rejected such charges. He has also resisted pressure to end one-party rule, saying Malawians favor it.

In May, Western donors suspended 74 million US dollars in aid until "tangible and irreversible" political reforms were introduced. The country is badly strapped for money due to drought and the responsibility of caring for a million war refugees from neighbouring Mozambique.

Public dissatisfaction erupted in anti-government rioting in May, and at least 22 people were killed. Since then, the government has freed some political prisoners and relaxed the law that permitted detention without charge.

Tens of thousands face starvation in Mozambique

MANJACAZE, Mozambique: Tens of thousands of people in southern Mozambique face starvation because of drought and war, and there is not enough donated food to go around, a news report said yesterday.

At least 200 people are known to have died of hunger between mid-July and mid-August, and hungry people are flooding into an emergency relief centre opened a couple of weeks ago, the national AIM news agency said.

In a report from the Manjacaze district of southern Gaza province, AIM quoted the local administrator, Antonio Manjate, as estimating that 108,000 people were in danger of starving. The 140 tons of donated food each month is only enough for about 45,000 people, Manjate said during a tour of the district. More than 260 people are living at the relief centre, but 20 to 30 more people arrive each day, he said.

"The food we receive doesn't kill our hunger, but at least it will delay our own deaths for some days or weeks," one elderly man, Valentim Matsinhe, is quoted as saying.

IN BRIEF

Cubans out

LOBITO: Unita leader Jonas Savimbi has made a hard-hitting start to the Angolan election campaign, promising to cut links with Cuba, disband controversial riot police and promote free enterprise if he became president. "There will be no relations with Cuba," Savimbi told an American-style convention of 500 cheering, stomping Unita delegates clad in Unita baseball caps and T-shirts on Saturday evening. Cuban civilians working in the country should leave, he added without elaborating. Hundreds of Cubans work for the government in specialised fields.

Hezbollah attack

NABATIYEH, Lebanon: Israeli warplanes blasted bases of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah in south Lebanon yesterday as voters in and around Beirut were casting ballots in the second stage of Parliament elections. There was no immediate report of casualties. It was Israel's 30th air raid in Lebanon this year.

AIDS nightmare

GABORONE: About 10,000 out of a population of 65,000 people in Francistown, Botswana, have been infected with the AIDS virus, according to the town's Medical Officer, Thandabantu Hlangabeza. He said 22 per cent of pregnant mothers were HIV positive and most of the babies would also be infected.

Neo-Nazi attacks

BERLIN: Rightist thugs burned down a tent city for refugees, fought with police and fired a bullet through an Albanian family's window as Germany grappled again yesterday with a surge of racist violence. Police agencies reported neo-Nazi attacks in at least eight cities.

Shipanga en Mnakapa bestempel as gemene leuenaars

DIE politieke komitee van die NPF het twee voormalige lede wat onlangs die party verlaat en oorgestap het na die DTA bestempel as onbekeerlike leuenaars en politieke opportuniste. Die saga van oor en weer beskuldigings tussen die party en die twee het ongeveer twee weke gelede begin toe die twee uit die party geskors is.

Die NPF se inwoners kan mislei word deur die leuens van Andreas Shipanga en Zen Mnakapa en daarom het die party besluit om die feite bekend te maak.

Shipanga en Mnakapa word daarvan beskuldig dat hulle reeds voor hul skorsing in samesprekings met die DTA betrokke was.

In hierdie sameprekings het die DTA, volgens die verklaring, Shipanga meegedeel dat hul van die kleiner partye verwag om nie aan die komende verkiesings deel te neem nie sodat die veld oopgelaat word vir die DTA en Swapo.

'n Voorstel is ook gemaak dat lede van die kleiner partye eerder by Swapo of die DTA moet aansluit om as verteenwoordigers tydens die verkiesings te staan. Shipanga is deur 'n sekere leier van die DTA hieroor ingelig maar het nie die res van die NPF daarvan meegedeel nie.

Die feit dat die twee as individue tot die DTA aangesluit het is genoeg bewys van hierdie sameswering se die NPF.

Die NPF het ook bewerings dat honderde voormalige lede van Swapo-D die NPF verlaat het ontken en gesê die perskonferensie waarop Shipanga en Mnakapa hul uittrede bekend gemaak het, het uit minder as vyftien persone bestaan, insluitende koerantpersoneel.

Die NPF het ook geen skulde gehad voor Shipanga en Mnakapa tot die party toegetree het nie en alle bestaande skuld is veroorsaak terwyl die twee here in die party was. Die NPF sê Swapo-D het nie met verskeie duisend rand tot die party toegetree soos wat hul voorgee nie maar het met minder as R1 500 na die party gekom. Die state bestaan nog en dit wat Shipanga en Mnakapa die land wil wysmaak is 'n deurskynende leuen.

Die NPF het ook bewerings dat honderde voormalige lede van Swapo-D die NPF verlaat het ontken en gesê die perskonferensie waarop Shipanga en Mnakapa is misleide leuenaars wat ten koste van kleiner partye hul eie voordeel by groter partye probeer soek waarheen hulle gaan vir finansiële gewin en politieke vooruitgang.

Die party is bly om van Shipanga en Mnakapa ontslae te raak aangesien die twee 'n onnodige las op die party se finansies was en hulself bewys het as skaamteloze politieke opportuniste en gemene leuenaars.

Vermindering van hulp veroordeel

DIE Anti Apartheid Bewegung(AAB) in Bonn, Duitsland, het die Duitse regering se besluit om skenkershulp aan Namibië in te kort weens die presidiële vliegtuig bestempel as verkieshulp vir die opposisie in die komende verkiesings.

Die AAB sê daar sal vandeelsweek onderhandelinge in Namibië plaasvind oor die toekomstige ontwikkelingshulp vanaf Duitsland aan Namibië. Voor die byeenkoms het dit reeds duidelik geraak dat Duitsland ontwikkelingshulp aan die land met die helfte wil sny.

In 'n brief aan die Federale Ministerie vir Ontwikkelingsamswerking het die AAB dié besluit as 'n veragtelike inmenging in die soewereiniteit van Namibië bestempel.

AAB sê die aankoop van die vliegtuig was wel problematies maar die Namibiese regering doen baie meer as ander lande vir ontwikkeling, opvoeding en gesondheidscienseste het 'n merkwaardig hoë toekenning in die begroting. Die Duitse ontwikkelingshulp het sovér nie veel bygedra herto nie, sê die verklaring.

Van die beloofde ontwikkelingshulp van honderd miljoen mark in 1990 en veertig miljoen in 1991 en 1992 het slegs 'n klein gedeelte dusvēr materialiseer. 'n Groot gedeelte daarvan is in die vorm van lenings eerder as subsidies. Hierdeur word die Namibiese regering forseer om langtermyn skuld teen sy eie wil aan te gaan se die anti-apartheidsbeweging. Die beweging sê ook die hulp wat deur Duitsland aan Namibië beloof is, is nêrens sigbaar nie.

In 'n brief aan Dieter Spranger, Federale Minister van Ontwikkelingshulp, word hy in die belang van die geloofwaardigheid van Duitse hulp en in belang van Namibië self versoek om nie ontwikkelingshulp aan die land te besnoei nie.

Terreurbende sit lank

SWAAR strawwe is verlede Vrydag gedien in die hoëhof op die ses lede van die sogenaamde terreurbende wat vrees in die harte van verskeie boere in die omgewings van Omaruru, Outjo, Oijiwarrongo en Okahandja gesaai het. Die laagste tronkstraf is tien jaar met die hoogste twee-en-vyftig jaar.

Waarnemende regter Louis Muller het voor vonnisoplegging gesê die gemeenskap verag die feit dat onskuldige persone in hul huise beroof en aangeval word.

Die bende het nie net die boere in die omgewing die skrik op die lyf gejaag nie maar potensiële beleggers het ook van hul optredes bewus geraak, het Muller gesê.

Muller sê al die bende se rooftogte was vooraf beplan en hulle het op verskeie wyses die wonings van hul slagoffers binne gegaan.

tating seven-over spell to finish with figures of 4 for 53 while Dodemaide who was making his first Test appearance in four years ended with 2 for 74 off 24 overs.

Confident Zaire lead the way

NAIROBI: Zaire, displaying more confidence than the host, beat Kenya 3-1 in a Group 4 Africa Cup of Nations match in Nairobi on Saturday. Zaire's first goal came in the 32nd minute and the third in the 57th minute. Kenya, which played mostly a defensive game, scored in the 55th minute. Zaire now leads Group 4 with four points from two matches. The group comprises of Zaire, Kenya, Lesotho and Mozambique.

Strauss inspires Western Province

CAPE TOWN: Western Province, thanks to inspired leadership by Tiaan Strauss, finished fourth on the Bankfin Currie Cup log when they beat Free State 29-23 at Newlands on Saturday.

The home side led 12-9 at halftime and scored three goals, a try and a penalty goal to their opponents two goals and three penalty goals.

The national selectors made a bad mistake when they omitted Strauss, the Western Province eighthman and captain, from their Springbok line-up against the Wallabies.

He dotted down once and had a hand in two other tries. With Province trailing 23-22 and with only three minutes remaining he put in another strong run and had Erich Lubbe (centre) in support who gave to Kobus Burger left wing, who dotted down.

Western Province owed much of their success to the excellent ball secured by Strauss and his fellow loose forwards FC Smit and Andrew Aitken in the rucks and mauls.

over at the interval two goals ahead.

SA midfield star, Augustine Makalakalane almost got his name on the scoresheet in the 41st minute but his goalbound shot was scrambled away for a corner. From the resultant corner, taken by Ace Khuse, SA captain, Neil Tovey watched in disbelief as his powerful header went fractionally wide of the Zambian woodwork with goalkeeper, David Chabala well beaten.

The local side were far more adventurous in the opening stanza, with the more experienced Zambians content to soak up the pressure and counter attack. Tovey had the ball in the back of the Zambian net in the first minute, but Lesotho referee, Phupu Liphoto ruled that the goal was offside.

Zambia's Stone Nyirenda also had a goal disallowed in the 45th minute when the referee adjudged that the ball had crossed over the SA byline before he scored.

The second half continued at the same cracking pace but it was the visitors who were able to step up a gear to earn a hard fought victory. Johnston Bwalya came close to opening Zambia's account but he was fractionally wide with a powerful shot in the 65th minute. A great save from SA keeper, Mark Anderson denied the dangerous Bwalya a goal in the 59th minute. But the winner came seven minutes later when the SA defence failed to clear a loose ball and were punished for hesitating when Mwitwa stabbed home the winner.

Tovey who played a real captain's match, cleared off his goalline in the 75th minute. Two minutes later the hard working SA skipper had a goalbound shot deflected for a corner and a minute later Makalakalane inched a good looking shot past the Zambian woodwork.

SA national coach, Screamer Tshabala was far from down-hearted afterwards and stated: "We were not disgraced. I thought we played very well. I am happy with the performance, but we still have a lot to learn."

Bobby's Portuguese blues

LISBON: Former England manager Bobby Robson suffered another setback in his new role as Sporting Lisbon coach when his side were beaten 2-0 at Salgueiros on Saturday night.

Robson, enticed from Dutch champions PSV Eindhoven to lead Sporting's challenge for their first Portuguese league title in 10 years, saw his new charges sunk by two goals in four minutes.

Salgueiros midfielder Rui Franca dribbled past Sporting's Croatian goalkeeper Tomislav Ivkovic to open the scoring in the 38th minute. Four minutes later, Yugoslav striker Nikolic Doucq added the second from a 20-metre free kick.

LIVERPOOL MAINTAIN WINNING STREAK

As Stars keep their promise...

CONRAD ANGULA

PRIME Press Liverpool romped to their fourth straight win after downing Auto Centre Nampol FC 2-0 in a one-sided Novel Ford Premier League outing played at the Katutura Stadium yesterday.

Liverpool, 4-0 winners over Robber Chanties at Outjo on Saturday, scored through Donald Tjikune and the towering Hellao Naruseb who seems to improve with each match.

Yesterday's victory left Liverpool's South African-born coach Mlungisi 'Professor' Ngubane with a broad smile.

The former Amazulu and Durban Bush Bucks, ball-wizard, however, declined to comment on his team's chances for league honours saying that his players would do the talking on the playing field.

"It's still too early to talk about the league honours now. We are playing well at this stage, but it does not automatically crown us for the championships," the soft-spoken Ngubane said.

Liverpool are now tipped as favourites to clinch the league title after Pupkewitz Toyota Young Ones failed to record a win in both their away outings at the weekend.

Young Ones played to a goalless stalemate against TCL Chief Santos at Nomtsoub on Saturday and continued their goal drought against Robber Chanties at Outjo yesterday.

It is, however, uncertain who is in the lead between Liverpool and Young Ones, as the Premier League is still not in a position to draw up an updated league table.

* African Stars also kept last Friday's promise by winning both their league encounters at the weekend.

The Castle Classic champions humiliated Nampol 4-0 on Friday night at Ramblers and maintained their winning streak by beating rock-bottom Punchline Challengers 2-0 at the same venue yesterday.

* Interatlantic Blue Waters also clinched six valuable points over the weekend after defeating Civics FC 2-1 on Saturday before bringing Sarusas Orlando Pirates down to earth with the same score yesterday after Pirates remarkable 6-0 win over Kraatz Welding Eleven Arrows on Saturday.

* A goal apiece from Shaya Mwelasi, Stakes Louw, Stro Naruseb and Lucky Shipanga, steered

Eleven Arrows to a 4-0 win over Civics yesterday and most certainly restored the defending champion's pride after their heaviest defeat since 1961 when the team was launched.

* A second half goal by midfielder Tangeni Nuuyuni also earned Mukorob Tigers a well-deserved victory over relegation prone Challengers at the Katutura Stadium Saturday.

Challengers' relegation worries were further revived when they missed a penalty shortly before changeover.

* Ramblers also added three valuable points to their margin after beating Black Africa 4-3 at home. Black Africa, however, recovered in time to maul Tigers 3-0 at the Katutura Stadium yesterday, thanks to a beautiful hat-trick by Smithley 'Chacklas' Engelbrecht.

SA and Zambia in epic soccer battle

JOHANNESBURG: Although beaten 1-0 by Zambia in a hard fought Africa Cup of Nations clash at Johannesburg's FNB Stadium yesterday the South African soccer side regained much of their shattered pride.

Thrashed 4-1 by Zimbabwe in their first Africa Cup game in Harare two weeks ago, the South Africans played their hearts out against the highly-rated Zambians, who have featured in four Africa Cup finals.

The local side obviously learnt a lot from that battering in Zimbabwe and surprised the Zambians with hard, first-time tackling and were, in fact, desperately unlucky not to have earned at least a draw.

"We thought this would be a walkover for us, but we were very surprised by the South Africans. It was a 50-50 game and at the end of the day I would not have complained had we got a draw. But we are delighted to have won," said Zambia's administrative manager, George Mungwa.

Disappointing however was the poor attendance. An estimated crowd of only about 20 000 witnessed what turned out to be an epic battle.

Defeated, but far from disgraced, was the verdict on this South African performance. They have at least shown that they will, in time, to be able to hold their own in the tough Africa Cup.

The day was soured for SA when striker, Chippa Masinga was shown the red card for an over the ball tackle on Samuel Chomba in the dying minutes of injury time. The winning goal was netted by striker Timothy Mwitwa in the 72nd minute.
